Introduction

Imagine you're sipping coffee at your favorite café, minding your own business, when someone strolls up to you with the dreaded question: "How was yesterday?" Now, if you're like most people, your brain might frantically rewind, trying to piece together fragments of what might've been a blurry Tuesday. Was yesterday good? Bad? Mediocre? Forgettable?

But not you. Nope. You, my friend, are different. You take a deep breath, look them square in the eyes, and say: "I don't know, but I'm so today."

Mic drop. Cue applause. Maybe even a standing ovation. Because you've just channeled the essence of Djamee's life-altering mantra: I'm So Today.

Chapter 1: The Yesterday Trap

Let's be real. Most people spend far too much time living in yesterday. Did I embarrass myself at work? Did I eat too much pizza? Did my cryptic text to my crush come off as cool or desperate? It's exhausting! Yesterday was like that annoying relative who kept showing up uninvited to the party: irrelevant but still stealing your energy.

The moment you declare, "I'm so today," you slam the door on yesterday's nonsense. Who cares if you tripped on the sidewalk or got stuck in an endless doom scroll? It's over! Done! And the best part? No one can drag you back there. Not even your overly curious coworker who insists on asking, "So, how was your day yesterday?"

Your response? A radiant smile and: "I'm so today."

Chapter 2: The Tomorrow Illusion

Then there's tomorrow. The great unknown. It's full of possibilities, sure, but also a bottomless pit of "what ifs" and "how wills." Will it rain? Will I ace that interview? Will my dog finally learn not to bark at the vacuum? Tomorrow is just as tricky as yesterday, except it's sneakier because it hasn't even happened yet.

"I'm so today" frees you from that, too. Why worry about something that doesn't even exist yet? That's like stressing over a movie sequel that hasn't been written. Live your life, darling! The present is calling, and it's fabulous.

Chapter 3: Fashionably Present

Now, let's talk style. Because being "so today" isn't just about mindset—it's about vibes. Djamee's mantra invites you to embrace your uniqueness right here, right now. Forget trends. Forget what everyone else is doing. Ask yourself: What makes you feel like today? Is it that bold jacket you've been too scared to wear? Those shoes that scream, "Look at me"? Or maybe it's a quirky accessory that's unapologetically you.

When you're so today, you wear your confidence like it's custom-made. You strut through life knowing that yesterday's outfit is irrelevant, and tomorrow's fashion is anyone's guess. But today? Today, you're a masterpiece.

Chapter 4: A Day in the Life of Someone So Today

Picture this: You wake up, stretch, and decide that today is going to be your day. Breakfast? Pancakes—because why not? You're scrolling through your phone when a friend texts, "Hey, how was yesterday?"

Pause. Smirk. Type back: "I don't know, but I'm so today."

Boom. You've just set the tone. You're no longer bound by the past or anxious about the future. Instead, you're fully immersed in the magic of the now. You're seizing opportunities, rocking your own vibe, and spreading positivity like confetti. People start to notice. They ask, "What's your secret?" And you smile knowingly, because you know the truth: You're not yesterday. You're not tomorrow. You're so today.

Chapter 5: How to Be So Today

1. Let Go of Yesterday: Leave it where it belongs—in the past. Unless, of course, it involves leftover pizza. That's always worth revisiting.
2. Ignore Tomorrow's Drama: Plan, sure, but don't obsess. The future will arrive when it's ready.
3. Celebrate the Now: Find joy in the little things. A sunny day, a good meme, a perfectly brewed cup of tea—whatever makes you smile.
4. Be Unapologetically You: Embrace your quirks, your style, and your vibe. The world doesn't need another copy; it needs you.
5. Spread the Mantra: The next time someone asks about yesterday, hit them with the classic: "I don't know, but I'm so today." Watch their mind blow.

Conclusion

Life's too short to dwell on yesterday or stress about tomorrow. Today is where the magic happens. So wear your confidence, own your uniqueness, and keep the mantra alive. Because when you're so today, every day is your best day.

So the next time someone asks, "How was yesterday?" you know what to say.

Say it loud. Say it proud: "I'm so today."
